Face the World

I am looking for a couple of rooms for the two Exchange Students who are staying with me at this time. I have a roommate coming back from working out of state at the end of October and need the bedrooms for her by October 21st. The students are here for the school year and go to Elsie Allen High School on Bellevue Avenue in southwest Santa Rosa. They are here with "Face the World", the organization who will vet the Host Families for them. If anyone is interested or could help these two students and myself, please contact me at (707) 526-3453 or by email at: paulahamilton250@yahoo.com or talk to me after the 10:30am Mass. Thank you.

Estoy buscando un par de habitaciones para los dos estudiantes de intercambio que se quedan conmigo en este momento. Tengo una compañera de cuarto que regresó de trabajar fuera del estado a fines de Octubre y necesito las habitaciones para ella antes del 21 de Octubre. Los estudiantes están aquí para el año escolar y van a la preparatoria Elsie Allen en la avenida Bellevue en el suroeste de Santa Rosa. Están aquí con "Face the World", la organización que investigará a las familias anfitrionas por ellos. Si alguien está interesado o podría ayudar a estos dos estudiantes y a mí mismo, comuníquese conmigo al (707)526-3453 o por correo electrónico a: paulahamilton250@yahoo.com o hable conmigo después de la misa de las 10:30 am. Gracias.

West county Accompaniment Team

There is an urgent need for housing for a wonderful, hard working Honduran family of five (2 adults, 3 kids 3-9 years old.) They have fled violence in Honduras and have been here since January. One working adult and some English spoken. There is a team offering ongoing support to this family. If you, or someone you know can help this family with housing, please contact Peggy Porter at pporter501@gmail.com

Poems to consider when under stress – like last week

By: Geoff Wood

I don't know how you handled the recent "preventive" blackout that left me wondering how many days it would last and compelled us for want of anything else to go to bed at 7pm. I experienced of whirl of internal aggravation – over the absence of any utilities to make of my house a home again; over my sense of impotence dwelling so far below the powers that be – inaccessible in this age of communication except by way of recorded relay messages followed by insane music. Even one's faith is put to the test.

But in retrospect I did learn things. My wife's caretakers reminded me that we had a large picnic ice container in which we could store our perishables; also that I had a recharger in my car that could revive my cell phone; also that Parsons still had a slim flashlight that could light up a whole room; also that, when my one and only Rayovac Lamp went out, what I needed was not a new bulb but four new D batteries . . . It was an education of which, if not for the blackout, I would remain contentedly ignorant.

The secret in rough times is to recover one's store of the quieter, even more mystical resources of one's existence – fond memories, even. As does my old fellow friar Richard Brugger, the poet laureate of Auburn, Washington, in these poems - Brugger being of Pennsylvania German stock:

The Galactic Milky Way

Late thirties the Axis Powers gobble up Europe. / I strategically walk into Pipersville Store, / Put my dime on the counter. Mrs. Bissey says nothing, / Reaches into her candy cabinet, hands me a Milky Way. // In Arithmetic hours before I grapple with 22 X 24. / My mind wanders, / Anticipates unctuous bite mellow-swirled chocolate, / Unwraps brown-green wrapper, / Knows instinctively rectangular dimension: height, length, / Width, depth, texture, consistency, preeminent luxurious delight. // World War II comes, goes, marriages, births, deaths, other wars, / Men on the moon, monsoons in Nepal, earthquakes in Colombia. / Ambiance of the Milky Way galactic never changes. / No new wrappers or mind-boggling merchandizing, / Only unspeakable magic whenever I take my first bite. / Along with immense gratification, / I think only a dime, / Mrs. Bissey, / The quiet unassuming interaction / At the Pipersville Store.

Peck's Pond

Love Nest, our place / in the midst of the Pocono's / dense woods, wood chucks / myriad of birds, orange / colored salamanders, ferns / blanketing the rich earth, / a rustic life. // No electricity, / kerosene lamps, wind-up phonograph, / indescribable mountain air, walks, / long hikes in the mountains, / rowing from one island to another / between tree stumps, fear / of rattlesnakes. Used to dock / on Sunny Rock / and think. // Everything happened about then. / My brother Franzie died. / He was seventeen / and I was eight. My father started drinking / that wouldn't stop; died of cirrhosis when I was thirteen. / Was I glum? Come to think of it--and I'm just beginning to now---Yeah. / How'd we deal with it? / We didn't / We took off to Peck's Pond.
